Letter from Justin

CEO and Co-Founder

Welcome To Storied Collection

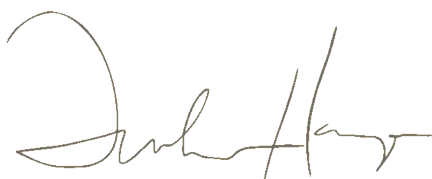

Storied Collection was originally created as a platform for travellers to easily search and book a room in a castle. While it was solving a problem, the mission was far from noble. As we continued our property visits, there was an overwhelming sense that these properties represented something much more than nightly accommodations. These historic castles, manor estates and stately homes had a story to tell.

Travel Agents are the backbone of this industry. Now working with our partners across the globe, we are empowering their clients to seek new destinations and achieve a deeper sense of self – through history.

We strive to not only provide a seamless experience for the consumer, but also equip our partners with tools for success:

- Access to the best historic properties in the UK and Ireland
- Curated trips with easy to share content
- Marketing tools like videos, brochures, and imagery
- Great commissions

And remember, history is cool.

History of Gilmerton House

Steeped in tradition and grandeur, this estate is a unique offering in our property collection. It's undergone a myriad of developments at the hands of thirteen generations of the Kinloch family. Soon after acquiring Gilmerton House, Sir Francis Kinloch became Lord Provost of Edinburgh and, in 1686, he was named a baronet of Gilmerton. Almost two centuries later, the current owner and 13th baronet of Gilmerton, Sir David Kinloch, returned to the estate in 1980, finding the house in disrepair and in dire need of an upgrade.

Pentrehobyn Hall

Flintshire, North Wales

Est. 1540

Pentrehobyn Hall is a Grade One-listed Jacobean Manor dating from 1540 just inside North Wales in Flintshire, near Chester. The Pentrehobyn Estate is approached via a long tree-lined drive and is set among 100 acres of lush parkland. Rich in history, the private country house dates back to medieval times

From the General Manager:

"My favorite part of the property is the grounds of the estate, which lead down to the River Alyn. Pentrehobyn Estate is set among 100 acres of Welsh countryside, which features a Victorian walled garden with a central lawn."

"Considering the longevity of the property and the fact that it has been in the same family for five centuries we very much try to keep the feel of a family home."

History of Pentrehobyn Hall

The Lloyds of Pentrehobyn are descended from Hywel ap Edwin who was elected Prince of Wales in 1096. Inside the house, there are two sets of early 17th-century carvings above the dining room and hallway fireplaces, which commemorate the successful attack by the Prince of Wales against the army of Randolph, Earl of Chester. Three Englishmen's heads were presented to the Prince of Wales who, in turn, granted these as the Lloyd ancestor's coat of arms.

History of Dunskey Estate

Dunskey Estate (also known as Portree Estate) is a B-listed mansion that dates back to the start of the twentieth century. The estate was the property of the Hunter-Blair family, later of Blairquhan in Ayrshire, and was acquired when Jane (or Jean) Blair of Dunskey, wife of James Hunter, succeeded her brother to Dunskey estates in 1777. A house dating from 1706 was extended in the 1830s, before The Rev James Blair acquired the estate in 1648.

History of Cluny Castle

For centuries, Cluny has been the cherished home of the Gordons of Cluny. The castle has gone through various changes and expansions since the 1500s, and our latest accomplishment was completing the chapel in 1870 thanks to John Gordon. This makes the castle one of the largest held privately in all of Scotland. In recent years, the property has received tasteful refurbishments and renovations maintaining the family's lineage within these glorious granite walls while still embracing modern life.
